* constructed ladders:

Ladder one:	tokens	one token per sound, having a physical representation of each sound	fun
Ladder two:	tokens	no need to go to the computer, you can directly play the melody	fun
Ladder three:	tokens	surprise effect	fun
Ladder four:	tokens	physical movements are perceived as more pleasurable	fun
Ladder five:	graphical application	easy to switch between musical themes, efficient	fun

Participant: 1

Gender: boy

School: de Mozaïek, Borgerhout

Interview: "We have played with two toys, the one with the computer and the one with the blocks, what is most fun, to choose the music via the computer or with the blocks?" (facilitator)
"The blocks." (participant)
"And why do you like playing with the blocks more?" (facilitator)
"Because you can play with the car then." The participant makes a movement with his hands. (participant)
"Ok because you can move the car directly over the blocks?" (facilitator)
"Yes." The participant nods his head. (participant)

Interview:	"What do you think is most fun to choose the sounds via the computer by clicking with the computer mouse on an image or to choose the sounds with the two types of blocks?" (facilitator)
	"Euh this one and this one." Points to the tokens. "And this is the piano." (participant)
	"Yes these are the piano sounds and these are the animal sounds" Points to the two types of tokens. "And why do you like that, like with two types of blocks?" (facilitator)
	"Because they are different and then you hear the different sounds for both the animals and the piano" (participant)
	"Yes, good." (facilitator)
